As the Director of the Peruvian Naval War College, I am pleased to present this Special Edition of our journal focused on the topic of Wargaming.

Since its beginning, the Peruvian Naval War College has used wargames as a tool for training the officers of the Peruvian Navy.

This special edition on Wargaming contains very interesting articles such as “Applied Wargaming – a tool for Integrated Disaster Risk Management,” “Wargaming as a discipline that constantly develops. How to ensure that new formats are improving the practice?,” “Perspectives and Interpretations around Wargaming from the Sun Tzu and Clausewitz’s vision,” “Wargaming at HMCS Venture: Enhancing Naval Officer Training” “Kriegsspiel dice: Why there is no luck in wargaming and why all wargames are simulations,” and “The Western Approaches Tactical Unit (WATU), the Development of Convoy Protection Tactics” and “The educational utility of microgames”.

I would like to thank the researchers, academics, and both foreign and national officers who have contributed with their articles to this space that promotes academic contribution.

Sincerely,
Rear Admiral
